The London-Middlesex High Conflict Forum is hosting a two-day workshop for clinicians and others who work with children, youth, and families embroiled in a high conflict separation, and who wish to do so with more efficacy and less anxiety. Dr. Jeff Chang, registered psychologist from Alberta will share a conceptual map and practical tips for working with families embroiled in high-conflict separation, divorce, and parenting.

Jeff will also address key issues such as the “parental alienation” discourse, clinical supervision, and developing a school-based or agency-based response. This is a not to be missed opportunity!
